

The respected Palo Alto Drug and Alcohol Collaborative is here to help teens and parents! www.padacc.org This broad-based community collaborative conducts extensive surveying of students at Palo Alto and Gunn High Schools and Jordan, Terman and JLS Middle Schools. Last year, in partnership with students and the parents, and the Palo Alto Unified School District, more than 5,000 of our Palo Alto middle school and high school students participated in PADACC's wide-ranging "social norms" survey, covering such important health issues as alcohol, marijuana and bullying. Read the complete results of the Palo Alto Drug and Alcohol Community Collaborative "Reality Check" survey at www.PADACC.org This non-profit group includes mental health experts, government leaders, counselors, educators, law enforcement, parents, youth, and many other concerned and dedicated community members.

Can help with the questions

"How do I begin to talk to my child about drugs and alcohol?"

"What's the reality about marijuana, alcohol and other drug usage by our young people in Palo Alto? What's really going on?"
